Urgent Need for Tripartite Summit on N. Iraq

Almost all the countries around the globe have religious and ethnic minorities. In principle, these minorities should have genuine rights to freely practice their religion, speak their own language, and generally live their lives according to their culture and tradition.

A society could be called civilized only if it allows its minorities to advance their culture within its legal boundaries.

Unfortunately, most religious and ethnic minorities across the world are suffering because of narrow-mindedness of the majority community.

The biased attitude of the majority community not only hurts the minorities, but also damages and degrades the whole society of the host country.

The Kurdish community in the Middle East is one which in some countries has been treated unfairly by the majority for centuries.

A thorough analysis of the mistreatment of minorities proves that the same biased attitude causes a deep separation between the two groups of citizens. Unlike in Iran, there are major differences between the Turks and their ethnic Kurds. The same is true of Iraq where labels such as 'Arab' and 'Kurd' are displayed in the respective neighborhoods of the two groups to separate them physically and psychologically.

The separation divides the communities, dilutes the rights of the minorities, and creates many psychological and social problems for both groups. These problems also create great hindrances in the way of peace, progress and stability not only for the minorities, but also for the entire society.

The minorities sometimes organize themselves to fight for their rights, as they have done in Iraq and Turkey. But, the leaders of these minorities adopted erroneous methods and most of them ended up being the 'most obedient servants' of certain powers inside or outside the region.

The most unfortunate aspect of such a tragedy is that the innocent people within the minority community suffer, as in the case of the Iraqi Kurds who are being attacked and massacred from several quarters and by various armies.

In Northern Iraq, the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan (PUK) and the Kurdistan Democratic Party (KDP) are shedding the blood of their community to gain power and a share of tax revenues.

Their occasional fights since May 1994, when trouble started, have claimed the lives of around 2,200 Kurds. The two groups have been in control of Northern Iraq in defiance of Baghdad since the aftermath of the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

Tripartite parleys between Iran, Turkey and Syria for tackling the situation in Northern Iraq are long overdue and should be immediately called to find a mechanism for silencing the guns there.

PRESIDENT:

Islam Capable of Leading the Society

IRAN NEWS POLITICAL DESK

TEHRAN - President Hojjatoleslam Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani in Isfahan Monday attended a gathering of ulama and theologians of Isfahan Theological School in Seyed Mosque.

The President was addressing the ulama. He referred to the Muslim clerics' role in guiding the society, saying that Islam is capable of leading the society in accordance with the scientific and political necessities.

He added that Islam will yield greater successes in society if it is implemented in the correct form and in a principled manner.

Rafsanjani arrived in Isfahan yesterday on a four-day visit. He further added that the ulama have the opportunity to introduce the true Islam to the world, under the wise leadership of the Revolution's Leader Ayatollah Seyed Ali Khamenei and the nation's support.

In reference to the enemies' anti-Iran conspiracies, including that of the eight-year Iraqi War, he added that the resistance put up against the global arrogance's aggressive policies is the result of the country's independence and self-sufficiency in scientific, industrial, health and cultural areas.

In regard to Iran's great potentials in different fields, he stressed that Iran will soon be turned into a developed country if the construction efforts' trend continues all over the country.

He also met with the provincial artists, saying that the construction work undertaken in the present era has been unprecedented in Iran's whole history.

He further called on Iranian artists to become involved in the construction efforts and help promote Iran's Islamic culture.

The President inaugurated the province's first Museum of Decorative Arts Monday. He and his

Tehran Governor General's Office Ready to Assist Cancerous Children

IRAN NEWS NATIONAL DESK

TEHRAN - Seyed Jalil Seyedzadeh, the governor general of Tehran, has recently expressed readiness to help solve the problems gripping the Charity Institute Supporting Cancerous Children.

Addressing a meeting of the said Institute's officials, he said, "The Iranian officials have all along supported patients suffering from kidney ailments and cancers and have tried to solve their problems."

Representative of the Institute's board of directors in turn said efforts are being made to construct a highly specialized pediatric hospital for children suffering from cancer.

This hospital can be constructed if the required land is

Iranian Charge d'Affaires Meets Azeri Prosecutor General

IRAN NEWS POLITICAL DESK

TEHRAN - Iran's Charge d'Affaires to Baku Afshar Soleimani and Republic of Azerbaijan's Prosecutor-General Eldar Hassanov in a meeting in Baku Monday discussed ways of boosting bilateral cooperation on judicial affairs.

Referring to the geographical closeness and also historical ties between the two neighboring countries, Hassanov stressed the need for all-out efforts to boost encourage later inspection of various departments of the museum.

Furthermore, Rafsanjani broke the ground for Isfahan's giant sports stadium. In the speech at the ground breaking ceremony, he referred to the victories of Iranian wrestlers at the Atlanta Olympic Games, saying that Iranian athletes are capable of achieving outstanding results in international sports competitions.

Meanwhile, a provincial network of the Iranian radio and television was inaugurated by President Rafsanjani on Monday.

In the inaugural ceremony he hoped that the Iranian radio and television would continue to improve the quality of its broadcasts.

The President said that there probably are those who think the Iranian radio and television network can do far better than what it is.

placed at the disposal of the Institute, he noted.

Dr. Mardavich Al-e Booyeh, one of the Institute's officials, said more than 50 percent of children affected by cancer suffer from leukemia. Brain, lymph, and kidney cancers follow with high incidence.

More than 60 percent of children gripped with leukemia can be fully cured, he stressed adding, "Treatment facilities for such patients in Iran conform to international standards."

More than 85 percent of cancerous children use insurance facilities, while a small percentage enjoy the donations of Imam Khomeini (R.A.) Relief Committee and the Institute, he concluded.

The two sides also discussed the latest development in Tajikistan, and Shikmuratov briefed Velayati on the recent negotiation held between the government and the opposition group in that country.

The two foreign ministers also agreed to continue efforts in helping the Tajik government and opposition group continue negotiations in the place of their choice be it Tehran, Ashkabad or elsewhere, which did not really matter.

The two sides also stressed the need for intensifying bilateral cooperation to fight against drug smuggling and terrorism.

The Hojjatoleslam further hoped that the administrators of the Iranian television network would continue to maintain the people's support, IRNA reported.

Meanwhile, Iranian Radio and Television Network Director Ali Larjani said that Isfahan is now the second Iranian province having its own radio and television network.

A new building for Isfahan radio and television network has three radio studios, one television studio and edit and control rooms with about 5,200 square meters of roofed area.

The facilities have involved a capital expenditure of about three billion rials in addition to $3.5 million.

By next February, the transmitters of Isfahan Radio and Television will be replaced by new improved ones to reach a wider audience in the province.

The provincial network of Isfahan Radio and Television now operates four hours daily which is expected to increase to six hours.

Afghan Peace Conference to Be Held in Tehran

IRAN NEWS POLITICAL DESK

TEHRAN - Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati told the press on his arrival in Ashkabad Monday that the regional conference on the Afghan peace process will be held in Tehran October 28-29, 1996.

Velayati said that the peace conference will be attended by the Afghan, Iranian as well as neighboring countries' foreign ministers, according to the Tehran-Kabul agreement.

The foreign minister also pointed out that the objective behind peace conference is the idea of assisting the Afghan government to steer about peace, stability and calm.

Velayati exchanged views with Turkmenistan's Foreign Minister Boris Shikmuratov regarding, which was welcomed by the host country.

Shikmuratov indicated that he will participate in the Peace Conference of Tehran as a regional cooperation move in order to help Afghanistan reach a peace settlement.

The two sides also discussed the latest development in Tajikistan, and Shikmuratov briefed Velayati on the recent negotiation held between the government and the opposition group in that country.

The two foreign ministers also agreed to continue efforts in helping the Tajik government and opposition group continue negotiations in the place of their choice be it Tehran, Ashkabad or elsewhere, which did not really matter.

Both Shikmuratov and Velayati discussed the trend of progress and ways to boost promotion of bilateral relations and regional cooperation.

Shikmuratov welcomed the most recent gas accord between Iran and Turkey, saying that it was one of the biggest regional developments.

Velayati arrived in Ashkabad on Monday and was received by his Turkmen counterpart, IRNA reported.

23 Killed in Truck Accidents

IRAN NEWS NATIONAL DESK

TEHRAN - Twenty-three people were killed in two separate truck accidents on the same road in southern Iran.

Seventeen people traveling on a van were killed and three others injured in a head-on crash with a truck in Bandar Abbas-Minab Road on Monday.

The highway police said the accident took place in the early hours of Monday when a van carrying 20 people collided with the truck.

The highway traffic experts said the driver of the van had violated the regulation by deviating leftward from its due course, according to IRNA.

In the other accident, a speeding truck overturned at a corner on the same road killing all six people on board.

Iran has one of the world's worst road accident rates, with 40,000 serious crashes each year for only three million vehicles on the roads.

"In this way South Africa will always remember Iran and the same vice versa," Ambassador Molla remarked.

South Africa's young wrestlers arrived here to participate at the 10th World Wrestling Championship, held in Tehran this week.

South African Amateur Wrestling Federation Chairman H. Westraat, addressing the guests, said that "never before have South African sportsmen been in the limelight as in the past few months."

"We have watched with pride the achievements of our national cricket team, our world champion rugby team, our Bafana Bafana soccer team, our boxers and lastly our Olympic squad to Atlanta," Westraat said.

He recalled that South African sportsmen received several medals at the Olympics for the first time in its history.

Westraat hailed the services of Ambassador Molla in promoting friendship between Iran and South Africa.

"Wrestling in Iran is like rugby in South Africa, he remarked and suggested that his country could gain much experience from Iranian wrestlers and coaches."

Westraat appealed to Ambassador Molla to arrange to send some Iranian coaches to South Africa.

From Iran, wrestler Amir Reza Khadem was present at the dinner. He received a bronze in Atlanta and his brother a gold medal.

Iran's Youth Team Coach Kazem Gholami and Wrestling Federation Head Mohammad Reza Taleghani were also at the party along with several other Iranian sportsmen.

Among foreign diplomats we noticed the Swiss Ambassador Rudolf Weiersmueller, Indian Ambassador Siddharth Singh, Sri Lankan Ambassador Y.L. Mohamed Zawahir, Sudanese Ambassador Gubbi al-Mahdi, Senegal Ambassador Omar Ndiane and several others there to attend the dinner.

South African Embassy's Ebrahim Edries and others were looking after the guests very well.

ing that U.S. Ambassador to Athens, Thomas Niles, met Greek Premier Costas Simitis on Saturday to discuss the matter. The paper said that Pangalos' visit to Iran had been programmed a long time ago, adding that the visit is taking place at a "problematic period" for Iran.

It referred to the U.S. d'Amato Bill which imposes sanctions on foreign companies investing over $40 million in the energy sectors of Iran or Libya. Eleftherotypia said the U.S. is "very sensitive" about Iran's relations with other countries, pointing to Washington's strong reaction against Turkey for signing the $23 billion gas and electricity deal with Iran.

The Greek foreign minister's visit was not aimed at signing any commercial or economic agreements with Iran, the paper added.

PANGALOS

IRAN NEWS POLITICAL DESK

TEHRAN - Greek Foreign Minister Theodoros Pangalos arrived here last night on a 2-day official visit for talks with Iranian government officials on issues of mutual interests.

Pangalos will meet Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati to review the progress of bilateral relations and discuss regional and international developments.

The Greek official is also expected to be received by President Hojjatoleslam Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani and Majlis (Parliament) Speaker Naeq-Nouri.

Velayati met Pangalos in June when he visited Athens to attend the funeral of late Premier Andreas Papandreou, IRNA reported.

Major Greek afternoon daily Eleftherotypia yesterday reported that Washington has expressed its opposition to Pangalos' visit, add-

SAIRI Appeals to Regional States to Help Iraqi People

IRAN NEWS POLITICAL DESK

TEHRAN - Supreme Assembly of the Islamic Revolution of Iraq's (SAIRI) Head Seyed Mohammad Baqer Hakim, urged the heads of Arabic and Islamic states to pressure the Iraqi regime so as to save the country's people from suppression by Baghdad's government.

In a message cabled to the leaders of the Islamic Republic of Iran, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, Syria, Kuwait and Jordan, Hakim emphasized that the Iraqi regime has embarked on a massive military operation against dissident Muslims in Amara, Naseryeh and Basra regions of southern Iraq since four months ago.

The SAIRI leader stressed that heavy arms including tanks and artillery are being used in the military operation, IRNA reported.

In reference to the Baghdad's efforts to cleanse the army through executing opponents of its policies, Hakim underlined that Iraq's catastrophic situation has negative impacts on regional peoples and threatens regional security and stability.

Commerce Minister Calls for Promotion of Non-Oil Exports

TEHRAN (IRNA) - Minister of Commerce, Yahya Al-e Eshaq, here Monday underlined the need to further promote country's non-oil exports.

Addressing the gathering of Iranian diplomats and ambassadors abroad, he said that foreign trade is considered one of the main pillars of development in any country.

The Islamic Republic of Iran should be the axis for a regional treaty, he stressed, adding that through such a treaty Iran will be able to play its due role in international trade relations.

He suggested signing of an

Comprehensive Steps Proposed to Enhance Pak-Iran Trade

ISLAMABAD (PPI) - Pakistan's Ambassador to Iran Khalid Mahmood Tuesday proposed comprehensive measures to enhance bilateral trade between Iran and Islamabad.

Delivering a talk on "economic dimensions of Pak-Iran relations" here at the Institute of Strategic Studies he said exchange of business delegations between the two countries should take place more frequently and suggested issuance of multiple visa for six months to businessmen on reciprocal basis on the recommendations of respective chambers of commerce.

He said efforts should be made to remove the non-tariff barriers so as to increase transit trade through Iran. He was of the opinion that the proposal for establishment of common border markets needs to be examined as it would help in reducing the volume of informal trade which presently exists between the two countries.

Ambassador Khalid Mahmood said Pakistan and Iran should allow opening of branches of their banks in each other's country. He said Iran should reduce period of "usance" from 360 days to 120 days for imports from Pakistan.

Development Projects to Be Inaugurated

TEHRAN (IRNA) - Hundreds of development projects have been completed and ready for ribbon cutting ceremonies throughout Iran during the Government's Week, beginning August 23rd.

The projects were implemented at a total cost of billions of rials and include various agricultural and industrial plans in rural and urban areas across the country.

Gilan, with about 500 projects to go into stream during the Government's Week has the lion's share, nearly half of which implemented in the deprived areas of this northern province.

Then comes Hamadan Province with some 100 projects pertaining to agriculture, watershed management, cottage industries, drinking water and power supply, bridge building, animal breeding and fish farming.

During the Week, some 74 development projects, mostly in urban areas are to be inaugurated in Mazandaran Province.

The projects include six city gas supply plans completed with a total expenditure of over 43,800 million rials.

With some 30 development, cultural and manufacturing projects implemented in Chabahar in the southeastern Province of Sistan-Baluchestan, the city will undergo a drastic change in terms of development during the Government's Week.

Malaysia's PETRONAS Joins TOTAL on Iranian Oil Project

PARIS, FRANCE (AFP) - French oil company TOTAL has granted Malaysia's PETRONAS a 30 percent interest in its project to develop 190 offshore Iranian oil fields.

TOTAL said Monday the participation of PETRONAS subsidiary Cugigali will raise $180 million out of the $600 million five-year investment required to develop the Sistan and East areas in Iranian waters of the Persian Gulf.

TOTAL signed the development contract on the two fields July with Iran's National Oil Company (NIOC).

Production is forecast to start in the beginning of 1998 and reach 120,000 barrels a day.

Netanyahu to revive the peace process.

The prime minister has since called on the army to take more aggressive action against Hezbollah guerrillas fighting to expel Israel from its "security zone" in South Lebanon.

Netanyahu warned during a tour of the border region on Monday that it would be "very hard" for the Lebanese people in the event of any new military confrontation with Israel.

Syria is the main power-broker in Lebanon where it has 35,000 troops.

"The Syrians could be worried because they understand that we are determined to fight Hezbollah in Lebanon," Mordechai told journalists yesterday.

Orthodox Jews Call for Golan Compromise

JERUSALEM - Spiritual leaders of the Jewish Orthodox party Shas in Israel's ruling coalition have called for a territorial compromise with Syria on the Golan Heights, their aides said yesterday.

"In my opinion, the Syrians should be given a part of the Golan and we should reach a compromise with them," Rabbi Yitzhak Kadouri said, backed by the party's spiritual Chief, Rabbi Ovadia Yossef.

The Shas Party of Sephardic oriental Jews has 10 MPs and is a partner in the rightwing coalition of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

Israel Offensive in South Lebanon

TYRE, LEBANON - Israeli forces shelled a South Lebanon village outside the occupied "security zone" yesterday after warning the Lebanese people they would pay the price for guerrilla attacks.

The army and its proxy South Lebanon Army (SLA) militia fired around 30 shells at Zibqine village, two kilometers (one mile) outside the occupied zone, a day after Hezbollah guerrillas killed an SLA officer in a bomb attack.

Three houses were badly damaged, a Lebanese police officer said, without giving details of casualties. The bombardment is in violation of an April cease-fire accord for South Lebanon under which Israel and Hezbollah pledged not to attack civilian targets.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu warned during a tour of the Israel-Lebanon border on Monday that the Lebanese people would suffer in the event of any new military confrontation with Israel.

A Hezbollah spokesman said yesterday that the shelling "was not the first violation of the cease-fire agreed by Israel," charging that Lebanese civilians had been wounded in the recent shelling of another village north of the buffer zone.

Meanwhile, an Israeli soldier was killed and another was wounded in the occupied zone when two nervous patrols mistook each other for anti-Israeli guerrillas, security sources said.

Hebron Could Bring Down Netanyahu's Coalition

JERUSALEM - Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's ruling coalition would be in danger of collapse if he ordered a re-deployment from the West Bank town of Hebron, Agriculture Minister Raphael Eytan warned yesterday.

"The government coalition will fall if Mr. Netanyahu does not respect the accords we have reached," said the leader of the far-right Tzomet Party, referring to pre-election deals with the Likud chief.

"Those who think they can make me deviate from my path must know that they are letting themselves in for problems," he told the newspaper Haaretz.

Eytan said the accord between the ousted Labor government of Shimon Peres and the Palestinians for the Israeli army to withdraw from 80 percent of Hebron would spell "catastrophe" for the town's Jewish residents.

King Hussein to Visit North

AMMAN, JORDAN - King Hussein was to visit northern Jordan yesterday as a curfew remained in place in the southern town of Karak, under army control following two days of riots against a steep increase in the price of bread.

The Jordanian monarch, who has vowed to put down the protests with an "iron fist," was scheduled to visit the northern city of Ramtha, near Jordan's border with Syria, officials said.

The bread riots which erupted in Karak on Friday spread to other towns in the south of the country on Saturday but did not spill over into the north.

U.N. Condemns Saddam

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND - A United Nations human rights panel Monday called on Saddam Hussein's regime to end inhuman practices such as mutilating opponents, branding as "exceptionally grave" Iraq's human rights abuses.

A resolution adopted by a majority of the U.N. human rights sub-committee demanded that Saddam Hussein immediately withdraw troops surrounding the country's southern marshes, and allow refugees to return to the region and humanitarian relief teams to accompany them.

The resolution also demanded an end to internal blockades against the north of the country where Kurdish groups are based, and against the Shia population in the south.

trapping thousands of Russian troops in street fighting.

He said it would take one month to oust the separatists from the city.

"In the current situation, I see only force as a way of getting out of the situation which has come about in Grozny," he told Interfax news agency.

Pulikovsky said his troops had already managed to break through separatist blockades around a number of Russian federal positions in the city.

"We don't intend to reconcile ourselves further with the brazen and barbarous actions of the illegal formations, who are continuing to shoot down our helicopters, staging daring acts of sabotage and blockading Russian servicemen," he told Interfax.

He told civilians late Monday to get out of Grozny within 48 hours, warning he would use all means at his disposal to drive out the fighters, who have been bantling for independence from Russia for the past 20 months.

Chechen rebel Commander Aslan Maskhadov urged Russian Security Council Secretary Alexander Lebed to exert all his influence "to stop the approaching madness," saying Pulikovsky's threat was "blackmail of the civilian population," Interfax reported.

An AFP report from Moscow maintained that the command of Russian forces in Chechnya is to revert to Gen. Vyacheslav Tikhonirov, who was temporarily replaced by Gen. Konstantin Pulikovsky, Interfax news agency said yesterday.

Meanwhile, Russian Security Chief Alexander Lebed is to leave Moscow for Chechnya today to carry out urgent measures to restore calm there, his aides said yesterday, quoted by Itar-Tass news agency.

In neighboring Dagestan, the Finance Minister of the Russian North Caucasus Republic, Gamid Gamidov, and three other people were killed yesterday in a car bomb blast in the republic's capital Makhachkala, Russian news reports said.

Witnesses quoted by Itar-Tass said Gamidov was standing at the entrance to the Finance Ministry when a car parked nearby blew up, at 9:30 a.m. (05:30 GMT).

Interfax reported that a total of four people were killed and eight wounded in the blast.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the blast.

Yeltsin in Heart Clinic

MOSCOW, RUSSIA - Russian President Boris Yeltsin has been hospitalized in a cardiological center near Moscow since August 15, Echo Moscow radio reported yesterday, quoting "informed sources."

The report was denied by the Presidential Press Service.

The sources quoted by the radio said doctors considered Yeltsin to be in a "relatively serious" state and they would soon decide whether he could be operated on.

President spokesman Sergei Yastrzhembsky said the report was "utterly absurd," Echo Moscow said.

The Kremlin said Yeltsin had left for Valdai, a lake region 300 kilometers (200 miles) northwest of Moscow, to decide whether to spend his holiday there.

"Boris Yeltsin has left for Valdai for two days to see if he can spend his holidays there," the spokesman said, without specifying when Yeltsin's holiday would begin.

Yeltsin is to return to Moscow during the week for meetings with government ministers, the spokesman added.

Yeltsin, 65, last appeared in public on August 9 when he was sworn in for a new four-year term as president, after a grueling re-election campaign.

After winning re-election the Kremlin said Yeltsin needed a rest.

On Monday, the Kremlin hit out at continuing Western speculation over Yeltsin's health.

Amid press reports in Germany and the United States that Yeltsin urgently needed to undergo heart surgery following two heart attacks last year, the presidential team dismissed such rumors as "alarmist."

Yeltsin, 65, has arrested militants in connection with a June bombing that killed 19 U.S. airmen.

"Six Saudi Muslim extremists, who are veterans of the war in Afghanistan, have confessed to the attack," said Faqih, whose group last Wednesday said a number of Afghan veterans had confessed to the bombing in the eastern city of Khorar.

"The six men are imprisoned in Jubail prison on the eastern Persian Gulf coast," Faqih told AFP when contacted at his office in London. "The Saudi authorities have not allowed the Americans to question the prisoners."

Massari told AFP that "four people - two Kuwaitis and two Lebanese - were arrested nearly a month ago in Kuwait and handed over to the Saudi authorities."

He said "the four men confessed to the attack in Khorar," in which 19 U.S. airmen died when a truck bomb exploded outside their military dormitory at King Abdul Aziz Air Base on June 25.

A spokesman for the Saudi Embassy in Washington said Friday that people have been questioned in connection with the bombing although no arrests have been made.

However, Turkey, Iran and Syria, which all have sizable Kurdish communities of their own, meet regularly to discuss the situation in northern Iraq, with which they all have a common border.

Aqazadeh said the promotion of economic relations with neighboring and Muslim countries was among the priorities of Iran's foreign policy.

The Iranian official said he hoped the executive aspects of the agreements would be finalized as soon as possible.

Meetings between delegations from the oil ministries of both countries looked at details of both the construction of the refinery and the gas pipeline from Iran to Pakistan.

Niyazov said those ties were "fraternal and sincere," being based on good neighborhood.

Turkmenistan would make efforts to further consolidate and expand bilateral ties, he said.

"We will never forget Iran's support and assistance to Turkmenistan when it suffered hardships," Niyazov said.

The Turkmen president announced his full support for Tehran as host of the regional conference on Afghanistan from October 29-30, according to the IRNA report.

He also underlined that to make the Economic Cooperation Organization (ECO) more comprehensive, Turkmenistan would concentrate its efforts on consolidating economic and political cooperation among ECO members.

Turkmenistan now assumes the rotating chairmanship of ECO.

Niyazov said his country wanted to work with Iran in speeding up the realization of trilateral agreements.

besides strengthening economic cooperation in this sensitive region, would solidify the independent foundations of the Central Asian and the Caucasus republics, the Iranian Foreign Minister said.

Trilateral cooperation was a complementary activity in the region, Velayati said, and such efforts would bring about economic growth. Other countries were willing to contribute to such cooperation, he said.

Lumbago, from the Latin word (ital) imbus, (end ital) or loin, may refer to any pain in the lower back, usually of muscular origin, but is often used to describe arthritic or bony pain as well.

Sciatica or sciatic pain is caused by a compression on the sciatic nerve that runs from the low back, across the buttocks, down the back of the thigh and into the leg, calf and foot. The pressure on the nerve may be caused by bony changes in the vertebrae, such as from arthritis, or from the bulging of cartilage that occurs with a "slipped disc" (intervertebral disc).

The treatment of lumbago is to reduce the spasm or pain in the muscles, of sciatica, to reduce or remove the pressure on the sciatic nerve. Frequently, heat and analgesics are used in both cases, which may be the origin of the confusion. Of course, it is just as possible arthritis lies somewhere at the beginning of both problems, but they have each taken a different course.

India Vetoes Nuclear Test Ban Treaty

GENEVA (AFP) - India formally vetoed yesterday a draft treaty banning nuclear testing in a move that threatens to torpedo 31 months of arduous talks aimed at halting the development of nuclear weapons.

India's representative to the negotiations, Arundhati Ghose, formally registered her country's veto of the pact at a meeting of the 61 countries involved in marathon negotiations at the disarmament conference here.

"Our opposition to that text continues," said Ghose, referring to the draft text already agreed to by the five declared nuclear powers of Britain, China, France, Russia and the United States.

"We would not therefore agree to it being forwarded to the UNGA (U.N. General Assembly) in any form by this conference."

Ghose repeated that New Delhi opposed the project because it did not set out a timetable for scrapping the arsenals of the five nuclear powers.

New Delhi also objects to a clause stating that India, a nation on the nuclear threshold, had to sign the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty (CTBT) in order for it to be implemented.

In an initial reaction, the U.S. Ambassador to the talks, Stephen Ledogar, called the move "most regrettable" and "a distortion of the conference's rules of consensus."

Ledogar said that despite the Indian veto, the draft treaty could still be forced through to the General Assembly next month.

Pakistan meanwhile denounced the move by India as "hypocrisy," saying its demands were "obviously unrealistic and unreasonable," and accusing India of opposing the draft treaty to keep its own nuclear options open.

The Pakistan delegation deeply regret that after two and a half years of painstaking negotiations, the Conference on Disarmament has been prevented by one country from recommending the adoption of a CTBT," Pakistan's delegation chief Munir Akram said in a statement.

"Today the mask of the 'Smiling Buddha' has been torn off revealing the face of the goddess of war," Munir said, a reference to the code-name of the nuclear device which India exploded in 1974.

The Indian move, which came despite last-minute efforts to persuade it to ditch its opposition to the treaty, strips the pact of the unanimous support it needs to go forward, and seriously undermines two and a half years of tough negotiations.

However, the other countries involved are still searching for ways to put the draft text to the U.N. General Assembly. One way would be for individual nations to put it before the annual gathering.

Diplomats said in Geneva last week that as a last resort the United States, relying on support from China, could circumvent the conference to bulldoze the treaty through.

The environmental group Greenpeace also called yesterday for the draft to go before the United Nations despite India's veto.

"Despite the disagreement in the committee, there is now a text of a treaty which cannot be allowed to just sit in some dusty archive in the United Nations," said Simon Carroll, Greenpeace representative to the Geneva negotiations.

"Although not perfect, the treaty would be sufficient to prohibit all nuclear tests forever and ensure that this ban is complied with. It's time to take it to New York and get it signed."

Last week John Holum, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said moves to submit the draft without the unanimous support of the conference was "an alternative route."

He made a final bid last week to win over India, after securing China's support for the project.

However, such diplomatic strategy could risk undermining the credibility of the disarmament conference, so far the only international forum for negotiating such treaties.

Pakistan for one said it "would regret any procedure that circumvents" the Geneva conference.

Yemen Accuses Eritrea of Not Withdrawing from Island

SANA, YEMEN (AFP) - Yemen

yesterday accused Eritrea of failing to withdraw its troops from a disputed Red Sea island by the time it had promised.

"Eritrea's position is strange at a time when the world expects it to live up to its commitment to withdraw from the island of Lesser Hanish," said the government newspaper called the Fourteenth of October.

"The Eritrean ambassador in Sanaa had however announced the withdrawal in the next few hours," according to the newspaper which is published in the southern Yemen port city of Aden.

After a mediation mission to Yemen and Eritrea by French envoy Francis Gutmann, France announced on Monday that Asmara would withdraw in the coming days from Lesser Hanish, which it occupied on August 10.

The Fourteenth of October newspaper said: "The most surprising thing is that the Eritrean regime is intensifying its press campaign against our country which is really disturbing."

"Peace in this region is in everyone's interest, and foremost for Eritrea," the daily said.

Algerian Government Denies Reported Massacre

ALGIERS (AFP) - Algeria yesterday sharply denied a press report that Islamic activists had slit the throats of 63 civilians, including pensioners and children, saying the Arab newspaper that carried it was trying to spread anxiety and support terrorism.

The London-based Arab daily Al-Hayat said Monday armed Islamic activists had cut the throats of 63 people including women, old people and children, in the worst attack on civilians since political violence erupted in Algeria in 1992.

The claim was "devoid of all basis in fact," the Algerian Interior Ministry said. It accused the newspaper, distributed in Arab and Western capitals, of "seeking to sow strife and spread anxiety among public opinion."

The newspaper had "but one objective: to support avowed terrorism come what may," the ministry statement said in a violent direct attack.

Three-Year-Old Girl Kidnapped

TOULOUSE, FRANCE (AFP) - A three-year-old girl was kidnapped as she walked out of Boulangerie with her older sister in a suburb of this southern French city, police said yesterday.

They said their only clues to Fatima's disappearance Monday came from her sister Sabrina, seven, who told them a man of African origin had snatched her and sped off in a Renault.

Thai Opposition Submits No-Confidence Motion

BANGKOK (AFP) - Thailand's opposition yesterday filed its second no-confidence motion against the country's embattled Prime Minister Banharn Silpa-archa, an opposition statement said.

Opposition leader and former Premier Chuan Leekpai, of the Democrat Party, submitted the motion to Parliament to censure Banharn for his "lack of leadership" and ability, the statement said.

Speaking to reporters after making the submission, Chuan said he hoped the long anticipated motion debate could take place on September 11.

"It is the opposition's duty to carry on from the last no-confidence motion as the political situation has no more legitimacy," Chuan said, adding that the opposition parties had been working closely together to frame the new motion. Banharn and his government survived the first censure motion in May but the opposition announced immediately afterwards that it would go on the offensive again in September with a second debate.

The premier narrowly escaped being censured in the last debate by controversially closing Parliament before he was due to be grilled, but will be the sole target of the new opposition attack.

"Banharn has no knowledge, no ability, no vision, no morals and has a lack of leadership," the opposition statement said. It also accused Banharn and his government of using their influence to profit from shady business deals.

Suicide Leap from Huge Bridge

LE HAVRE, FRANCE (AFP) - A woman committed suicide yesterday by leaping from the top of the Pont de Normandie, one of the world's biggest suspension bridges which opened last year, police said.

The woman, whose identity was not revealed, fell 40 meters (130 feet) into the Seine Estuary. Her body was recovered by frogmen, a spokesman for emergency services said.

A number of suicides have been reported on the bridge since it opened 1st January. It is designed to carry 1.5 million vehicles per year - a world record - across the Seine when fully operational.

U.S., Cuba Trade Expulsions of Diplomats

WASHINGTON (AFP) - The United States expelled a Cuban diplomat yesterday in a tit-for-tat for Havana's expulsion of a U.S. diplomat, officials said yesterday.

State Department spokesman Glyn Davies said Cuban diplomat Jose Luis Ponce, who is accredited to the Cuban interests section in Washington, must leave the country within one week.

He said the action was taken in response to Cuba's decision to expel Robin Meyer, a diplomat with responsibility for human rights issues.

Davies said that Havana had accused Meyer of carrying out activities "incompatible with her diplomatic status", a charge that usually implies espionage or subversion.

"We categorically reject that assertion and protest in the strongest terms the Cuban government's action in requiring her to leave," Davies said in a statement.

Meyer, who was posted in Havana two years ago, had openly met with human rights groups and provided them with newspapers, magazines and textbooks that were allowed under the Vienna convention on diplomatic relations.

"In response, we have taken reciprocal action," Davies said.

Bill Ponce said "there is a significant difference" between the two expulsions. "What she (Meyer) was doing in Havana and what I was doing here is very different. I was trying to build bridges, trying to improve mutual understanding. But these people are not interested in that," he told AFP.

Ponce said it was the first time in 10 years the United States had expelled a Cuban diplomat posted in Washington and described this as "a very negative signal."

Press reports identified him as a Dutch national aged 58 and said he had been detained after police swoops on properties in Brussels and elsewhere. A search of his caravan turned up pornographic material, they added.

In another development, Czech police have been searching the two Belgian girls since late last year. Interpol's Deputy Director here, Vratislav Gregor, said yesterday.

The two girls disappeared from their homes in August 1995.

As the parents of the missing girls appealed for their release, The Demiure Heure newspaper said investigators had evidence of a Belgian paedophile network with links in Germany and the Czech Republic.

Oman Studies Border Dispute Between Bahrain and Qatar

DOHA, QATAR (AFP) - The Emir of Qatar, Sheikh Hamad ibn Khalifa al-Thani, received Omani Foreign Minister Yussef ibn Alawi ibn Abdallah late Monday to discuss a border dispute between Bahrain and Qatar, said the official QNA agency.

The meeting, which was also attended by Qatari Foreign Minister Sheikh Hamad ibn Jassem al-Thani, discussed "the latest developments in the region," said QNA.

Earlier Monday the Omani diplomat met with Bahrain's Crown Prince Hamad ibn Issa al-Khalifa in Manama for talks about the long-running feud between the Persian Gulf neighbors.

The pair discussed "ways to resolve outstanding problems between members of the (Persian) Gulf Cooperation Council (P)GCC and to lift obstacles in the way of the smooth working of this pact," the official Bahraini news agency GNA said.

Bahrain and Qatar both claim sovereignty over the Hawar Islands and Fash al-Dibet Rocks in the Persian Gulf, with the dispute almost degenerating into armed conflict in 1986.

S. Korean Police Storm Campus, 3,200 Arrested, Street Battles Erupt

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (AFP) - Thousands of South Korean riot police, backed by helicopters and firing stun grenades and tear gas, stormed a university campus here at dawn yesterday and arrested 3,200 radical students.

The attack ended a violent nine-day standoff with the students, led by the outlawed radical federation of university students or Hanchongnyon, accused by the government of links with North Korea.

Twelve hours later, some 5,000 police were scouring the streets for the last of hundreds of students who outwitted them and slipped into surrounding alleys.

Yesterday's arrests brought to 5,600 the number rounded up since the standoff started last Monday, the highest number ever arrested over a single incident in South Korea's turbulent history, Yonhap news agency said.

Yesterday's dawn attack started at 5:40 a.m. (20:40 GMT Monday) when riot troopers used sledgehammers to smash into one of two barricaded buildings at Seoul's prestigious Yonsei University.

"We categorically reject that assertion and protest in the strongest terms the Cuban government's action in requiring her to leave," Davies said in a statement.

Meyer, who was posted in Havana two years ago, had openly met with human rights groups and provided them with newspapers, magazines and textbooks that were allowed under the Vienna convention on diplomatic relations.

Twenty Wounded in Dhaka University Gun Battles, Rain Defuses Tension

DHAKA, BANGLADESH (AFP) - Heavy rain and a strong police presence helped reduce tension at Dhaka university yesterday after a night of clashes between rival student groups which left 20 people wounded.

The heavy rain and police presence partly damped overnight tension despite a protest strike called by an opposition student group which left classrooms and offices shut closed, they said. Witnesses said rival groups of students tried to start a protest march at the arts faculty area, but were forced to retreat when the downpour started.

Police patrolled the downtown university campus yesterday after the gun battle late Monday between student activists from the ruling Awami League and the rival Bangladesh Nationalist Party (BNP). The two sides exchanged gunfire and threw crude bombs in a dispute over control of dormitories and student union offices.

One pro-government student leader told AFP that leaders of the rival groups agreed to immediately hold peace talks at a campus canteen yesterday to defuse tension.

The meeting started with top leaders from both sides, he said without giving immediate details.

A senior constable was among the wounded and was admitted to hospital after being hit by bomb fragments, police sources said.

Watertight Case, Says IAAF

SYDNEY (AFP) - The International Amateur Athletics Federation (IAAF) has a watertight case against Australian sprinter Dean Capobianco, who tested positive to steroids prior to the Atlanta Olympics. IAAF General Secretary Istvan Guylai said here Tuesday.

The world athletics body will next month hold an arbitration hearing into the case at its Monte Carlo headquarters after the 26-year-old Capobianco was cleared to run in Atlanta by Athletics Australia just days before the Olympics.

An Athletics Australia tribunal ruled last month that there was insufficient documentation to guarantee the safe custody of Capobianco's urine sample from a track meet in the Netherlands on May 26 to a drug-testing laboratory in Cologne, Germany and there was a chance that the sample had been tampered with.

The Dutch Federation deny the Australian findings with the head of the federation's doping controls saying that all appropriate forms and procedures were carried out correctly.

Guylai, here for the 6th IAAF world junior athletics championships, said at a press conference: "our doping commission, who are experts, very clearly advised (the IAAF) council that they consider this unanimously without any doubt a doping case. What happened was legally correct."

Asked if the IAAF had a watertight case, Guylai said, "yes."

"We would have liked to have resolved the issue earlier, we would have liked to resolve it before the Olympic Games, but we cannot blame Athletics Australia because what they have done is completely in compliance with the rules as they are now."

"There is a good thing in it also, because the IAAF wants to show the entire world that rules are rules and we go by them."

Guylai said the arbitration findings will be binding on both parties.

He said that in the aftermath of the Capobianco case the IAAF's doping rules would have to be amended to prevent a repeat.

Athletics Australia President

David Prince, sitting alongside Guylai at the press conference, said: "We have a responsibility to prepare a case to the IAAF, we are doing that now, and because we are doing that we are not in a position to make any public statements...hopefully there will be some decision before the end of September."

Capobianco, who failed to progress past the preliminary rounds of the 200 meters at Atlanta, tested positive for the Anabolic Steroid Stanazolol at a meet at Hengelo.

Abdolreza Jokar also won a silver medal in the javelin.

Giddins Banned for Cocaine

LONDON (AFP) - Sussex fast bowler Ed Giddins became the first cricketer to be banned from first-class cricket for taking drugs after being found guilty of using cocaine on Tuesday.

The Test and County Cricket Board's discipline committee slapped a ban on the 25-year-old until April 1, 1998 after he failed a drugs test in May.

Giddins, who toured Pakistan with England 'A' last year, is regarded as one of the best fast bowling prospects in England.

Sussex secretary Nigel Bett said: "I think he was speechless. I don't think there was a reaction."

The hearing was adjourned after more than four hours on Monday, but Giddins emerged from the TCCB's Lord's offices after 20 minutes on Tuesday.

Before being driven away in a red VW Golf, he would only comment: "I've absolutely nothing to say, I wish I could."

The only known previous case of a cricketer being tested positive was Yorkshire bowler Richard Stimp, when with Worcestershire, but the TCCB accepted his explanation that a drink had been spiked.

This time, though, the committee rejected Giddins' contention that he had ingested the drug inadvertently and found that his taking of the drug must have been a deliberate act.

The committee said that Giddins' punishment should send out a strong message to the cricketing community.

"Cricket, its players and administrators, would not tolerate in its ranks those who indulge in the use of a prohibited drug. The committee was sure the public would demand nothing less."

Bett meanwhile welcomed the resolution of a case that has been hanging over the County for weeks.

Bett said: "it's obviously been in the background at Sussex over the last few months and people will all be happier that the matter is closed."

"We shall obviously miss Ed, he's a quality cricketer. But I think it will release the pressure on a lot of people."

"I think that when one of your colleagues has got something like this hanging over his head it makes life a little bit difficult in the dressing room."

Bett reported that there was no major reaction to the Giddins' case in the local area, adding:

"The postbag hasn't been bulging with letters, and there's been no real reaction in the crowd, it's not really been mentioned by anybody on the circuit."

Sri Lanka on Alert

COLOMBO (AFP) - Sri Lanka has tightened security at cricket grounds and assigned elite police commandos to guard visiting teams competing in the Four-Nation Cricket Series beginning here Saturday, officials said.

The Special Task Force (STF) commandos will protect players while other police units have been brought under a deputy inspector-general to accord security normally reserved for visiting heads of state, officials said.

"All arrangements are in place to receive the players from Australia, India and Zimbabwe," a spokesman for the Board of Control for Cricket said.

Small's Test Future on Hold

PRETORIA (AFP) - Controversial Springbok wing James Small will have to wait until August 31 and the end of the current Three-Test Series against New Zealand to find out if he has a future in international rugby.

Springbok coach and convenor of selectors Andre Markgraaff said that he will deliver a full report on Small's recent disciplinary record after the final match at Ellis Park in Johannesburg.

Small was left out of the South African side for the first two tests of the All Black Tour after being seen at 2:00 a.m. in a nightclub on the Friday before the final Sanzar Series test against the All Blacks in Bloemfontein a fortnight ago.

There have been nationwide calls for the return of Small, South Africa's most capped player with 31 internationals since the country's readmission, for the second test of the series at Loftus Versfeld in Pretoria on Saturday.

But Markgraaff has steadfastly refused to recall the explosive 27-year-old, saying that, while the decision was not taken lightly, Small's attitude over the past few weeks has had a negative effect on the Springbok squad.

"James Small is a very talented player who has represented his country with distinction," said Markgraaff.

"But we can no longer tolerate his strange attitude and the effect it has on the other players."

Markgraaff also hinted at a lapse in discipline by the talented wing during the recent tour of Australia and New Zealand.

Small is devastated by the decision of the national coach.

"I live for the Springbok side and I'll die for the Springbok side," he said from his home in Durban.

Achievements in Fencing Elaborated

Exercise Is Usually Helpful in Lowering Blood Pressure

By Dr. Allan Bruckheim

QUESTION: As I look around at some of my friends, they all seem to have a minor ailment or two, most commonly a bit of high blood pressure. But they are all trying to stay young through exercise. My wife worries that such strenuous activity may drive the pressure even higher, yet they all tell me their doctors say it's just fine to pursue sports. Could it be my wife is wrong?

ANSWER: I hate to break this news to you, but it seems that at last your wife has erred, just a little - but that doesn't make her a bad person. It is true that blood pressure may rise a bit during periods of exercise, but that is a temporary situation and is not considered dangerous or harmful. The fact is, a regular schedule of aerobic exercise, walking, jogging or formal aerobics classes can all lead to lower blood pressure, and certainly a healthier individual.

In fact, while aerobic exercise may temporarily increase systolic pressure (the higher number in the blood pressure reading that occurs when the heart contracts), the diastolic pressure (the lower number, which measures the pressure that exists between heartbeats) is generally lower during exercise. This is due to the dilating of the blood vessels to allow additional blood to flow to the muscles that are working. This diastolic blood pressure lowering does not occur during an exercise session with weights and is not considered dangerous. Probably the best type of exercise combines a little weight-lifting or weight training with an aerobic exercise session.

There is one caution, though, that needs to be stated. Exercise is a wonderful, healthy activity for people with hypertension that is under control and at near-normal levels. Those who have blood pressure readings that are more than 180/100 should not indulge in a program of exercise or activity until proper medical care has reduced their pressure. However, exercise has benefits for all, and maybe it is time that you, and your wife, joined your friends in their healthful endeavors.

QUESTION: What a pair of patients we make! My husband grabs his back and cries "Lumbago!" My back pain has been labeled sciatica. Are we suffering from the same condition? It seems that the two terms are referring to the same problem. Would you clear this up for us?

ANSWER: No, the two conditions are really quite different and I will try to make things a bit clearer for you.

STYRAX AFFICINALIS L.

Family: Styraceae

Modern Greek Name: Stouraki, Agriocidonia

This species is the sole representative of its genus met with in Europe. It is a shrub growing sometimes to tree-proportion: up to 7m. high. Leaves alternate, ovate, entire, are of a greyish-green color on the upper surface and glaucous-green and hairy beneath. Corolla white, campanulate with a very short tube terminating in 5-7 lanceolate lobes. Flowers borne 3 to 6 together on the tips of the branches. It is a very ornamental species cultivated on account of its beautiful abundant flowers. It occurs in damp places such as stream and river banks or woods of the semi-mountain zone. Flowers from April till May almost everywhere in Greece.

High Blood Cholesterol Not as Threatening in Elderly

CHICAGO (AP) - A new study shows high cholesterol may not be much of a threat to healthy people over age 70, leading some to suggest doctors may be needlessly prescribing cholesterol-lowering drugs for many older patients.

People aged 71 to 104 with elevated cholesterol levels suffered no more heart attacks or deaths than their counterparts with normal cholesterol levels, the study of 997 people found.

"Cholesterol in older people may mean something very different than in younger people," said the lead author, Dr. Harlan M. Krumholz, an Assistant Professor of Medicine at Yale University School of Medicine. He emphasized that more research is needed.

One possibility is that cholesterol levels in the old may not reflect lifelong levels. Another is that people who have survived with high cholesterol may be more resistant to its artery-clogging potential than other people, the researchers said in Wednesday's issue of the journal of the American Medical Association.

Previous research on high cholesterol in the elderly has yielded confusing findings, an American Heart Association spokesman said.

At least two large studies have found that high cholesterol increased the likelihood of heart problems, and at least four found that such levels did not, said Dr. John D. Brunzell, who was not involved in the new research.

The apparent conflict may be explained by the varying health of elderly people enrolled in the studies, said Brunzell, a Professor of Medicine at the University of Washington in Seattle.

The studies in which cholesterol seemed harmful in later life involved unusually healthy subjects, he said. For such people, heart disease may occur much later in life, and high cholesterol may play a role, he said.

For groups more representative of the population - as in the new study and the four others that found high cholesterol to be benign in the elderly - heart disease may already have occurred at earlier ages, he said.

More than 2 million Americans over age 65 are being treated with drugs to lower high cholesterol levels, and many may be getting treatment unnecessarily, an editorial accompanying the study suggested.

Cholesterol-lowering drugs can be expensive, can have uncomfortable side effects and may increase the risk of other causes of death, such as cancer, the editorial said.

Contrary to federal recommendations, "elderly people in their late 70s and beyond generally should not be screened or treated for high blood cholesterol," said the editorial, by Drs. Stephen B. Hulley and Thomas B. Newman of the University of California, San Francisco.

"The most important thing about this (new) paper is it suggests that we need to be careful treating high cholesterol in older people, thinking we're going to prevent heart disease," Brunzell said. "There's very little data to suggest that'll work."

The National Cholesterol Education Program recommends that all adults know their blood-cholesterol levels, and that levels above 240 milligrams per tenth of a liter of blood be treated, first with dietary changes and then with drugs if necessary.

Dr. Basil Rifkind of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, agreed that "We don't want too high a proportion of older individuals on drug treatment to reduce cholesterol."

Pets and Owners to Be Buried in Same Cemetery

pets and people?". Wedgewood added.

He plans to lease each tree for 150 pounds ($225) for 10 years, with that payment to cover the cost of the burial of the first pet.

Burial of humans will cost 250 pounds ($375), and tree leases will be renewable at terms to be agreed every ten years.

"Humans will be buried to the south of the tree, as the Mongols would have insisted," Wedgewood told the Times.

"Pets go to the east, north or west. If anyone wanted their pet buried alongside them or in a double depth grave, I expect that could be arranged," he added.

The local parish council backed the scheme, which finally got the go-ahead earlier when the district council granted planning permission.

Independent Panel Supports U.N., Blames Crisis on Washington

UNITED NATIONS (AFP) - The United Nations can be a useful U.S. policy tool but is in crisis largely because of Washington's "negative attitude" and consistent refusal to pay its dues, a panel of independent U.S. experts said here recently.

At a news briefing here, members of the panel which included prominent politicians and former critics of the United Nations, detailed the findings of a report which concludes that the United Nations "can be a useful and effective means to advance U.S. interests in the world."

They intend to take up their findings with Congress and the Clinton administration in a bid to restore bipartisan support for the world body which is grappling with the worst financial crisis in its 51-year history.

Team member George Soros, the international financier, said that "The U.N. is in crisis very largely because of the animosity towards the U.N., and the non-payment of the dues, by the United States. We are arguing that we are damaging our own interests by doing this."

John Whitehead, chairman of the U.N. Association of the United States and a long-time U.N. supporter, said he had "never seen international resentment (of the United States) as high as it is today over United Nations issues."

He said that Washington's "negative attitude" such as its "rather brutal discarding" of U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, and failure to pay arrears of more than one billion dollars, had contributed to that perception.

Washington is threatening to veto a second term for the current secretary-general.

The report concludes that the current crisis is due mainly because member states have failed to pay their bills, have given the United Nations responsibilities without the power to carry them out, and have blamed the United Nations for failures in national policies.

"The principal way to make the United Nations a better organization and to better serve U.S. interests is to fix American perceptions of what the United Nations is and is not, and of what it can and cannot do," the report says.

"To be sure, the United Nations needs reform, streamlining and cost-cutting. But what it needs most is for the major powers to agree on when, how and where to use it well and wisely."

Council of foreign relations expert Mort Halperin pointed out that the failure in Bosnia which was blamed on the United Nations, "was largely the failure of the major powers to know what they wanted to do."

Nader Has Fought for Consumers for 30 Years

LOS ANGELES (AFP) - Ralph Nader, who is now officially the Green Party's presidential nominee, has crusaded for consumer's rights and against corporate profiteering for 30 years.

Often portrayed as David against Goliath, Nader exhorts Americans to uphold "their civic responsibility ... we can't possibly have a democracy with a few million Americans and only a handful of citizens," he once said.

His work has yielded concrete results -- from seat belts and air bags in automobiles to the Freedom of Information Act, upon which journalists and others rely to get information from the government.

To his detractors, 62-year-old Nader is something of an anachronism. The world has changed but he seems frozen in time. And, they say, his efforts have brought government interference and burdensome regulations.

Democratic ticket.

Over the years, Nader established a network of organizations monitoring Congress, the environment, economic policy and health in general. His latest triumph came in the late 1980s, when he forced automobile insurance companies in California to slash their rates.

Today as in 1965, Nader still has the aura of an energetic college professor. He dresses pretty much the same and has not moved out of his modest apartment at Washington's Dupont Circle.

Unlike the average American, Nader has no credit cards, prefers his aging typewriter to a computer, does not have a car or a stereo and watches a black-and-white television.

He has shunned marriage because, he commented: "I didn't want to be an absentee father or an absentee husband."

But despite such apparent drawbacks, Nader boasts of living "better than 99 percent of the people on the planet."

China Mulls New Laws to Control Serious Coastal Pollution

BEIJING (AFP) - China is to implement tough plans to curb the discharge of waste water around its coasts, a type of pollution responsible for the death of some 80 percent of coral reefs, the China daily said yesterday.

Some 80 percent of coastal pollution comes from the nine billion tons of untreated water, including 1.46 million tons of sewage and petroleum products, that annually flow into the seas from coastal towns, it said.

Meanwhile Azerbaijan has press censorship and a government consisting mainly of President Heydar Aliyev's relatives and close friends.

The situation in Armenia is little better, where political dissent is not encouraged and international observers declared last year's parliamentary elections unfair.

which play important parts in the sea's self-purification," the paper quoted experts as saying.

Many cities in China are concealed under a haze of atmospheric pollution that has caused a dramatic increase in respiratory diseases such as asthma and bronchitis.

Much of the pollution is concentrated in coastal areas, the birthplaces of China's economic boom and still the focus of much government and overseas investment because of their convenient transport links.

China has recently promulgated a clutch of laws to curb pollution and ordered hundred of small paper mills to close or install facilities to treat the millions of tons of chemical-contaminated water they discharge into the country's major rivers.

Georgia Sees Its Future with Europe

TBILISI (AFP) - For newcomers strolling past the 19th-century opera house and the elegant neoclassical facades on Rustaveli prospect, Georgia's capital is more reminiscent of a town in southern Europe than a former Soviet republic.

And these days Georgians and their President, Eduard Shevardnadze, feel the same way.

"This is nothing new, we've always had close ties with Europe," said Dato Kadagishvili, a young businessman who runs Tbilisi's only bagel shop.

Georgia's recent application for full membership of the Council of Europe, the 39-member body that promotes inter-governmental and parliamentary cooperation, is part of Georgia's swing away from Russia and towards integration with Europe.

"Every Georgian believes he's a European," said Alexander Rondeli, a professor at Tbilisi State University.

"To be European is the ultimate compliment here -- it represents everything positive, from civilization to culture to a developed democracy," Rondeli said.

Bush Hunters Patrol Where Police Fear to Tread

ABIDJAN (AFP) - Frustrated by the inability of the police to prevent a growing spate of violent crime in their area, residents of Abobo, a populous working-class district of Abidjan, have called on a brotherhood of bush hunters known as Dozos to secure their streets.

Around midnight, before each patrol, the Dozos prepare themselves for their night's work. All wear traditional costumes, some embellished with cowries shells, mirror fragments and gazelle horns. They are armed with ancient and unreliable muskets that spew out great clouds of smoke when fired.

Crouched in the middle of a crossroads, one of the bushers mutters incantations as he leans over his fetish, a mysterious headless bird. The others reply by blowing whistles that imitate animal noises.

For the fun-loving Georgians, who have been Christian since the 4th century, nothing is more natural than joining Europe. They say they share the same religion, culture and historical traditions.

Georgians, who count many playwrights, film directors and artists in their midst, hope to gain cultural exchange from increased integration with Europe.

"Membership of the Council of Europe is the waiting room for becoming a member of the European Union," said Liana Gogoberidze, chairman of Georgia's five-member parliamentary delegation to the Council of Europe.

"Closer ties are also a guarantee of our independence and security," Gogoberidze said, referring to Georgia's fledgling democracy and sense of statehood, recently won after 70 years of Soviet rule.

It is no secret that Russia was loath to part with the oil-rich and strategically important Trans-Caucasus region after the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991.

But the loss of Georgia, with its snow-capped mountains, subtropical beaches and lush vineyards, was perhaps the hardest to bear.

To this day Shevardnadze, the former Soviet Foreign Minister, has to play a careful game balancing Europe and Russia.

"Georgia is always looking for a protector," said Gia Nodia, head of Tbilisi's Caucasian Institute for Peace, Democracy and Development.

"Georgia has some strong neighbors -- Turkey and Iran and in the past Russia was their protector. Now Russia is seen as a potential threat and the West as a guardian against Russia," Nodia said.

Both Georgia and Armenia have been guest members of the Council of Europe since May. But it is more likely that Georgia will get the go ahead for full membership when the next session meets in September than will Armenia or Azerbaijan. The trans-Caucasus countries are all at different stages of development," said Dennis Sammut, the director of Vertic, a British non-governmental organization here.

"Georgia is the most advanced in terms of a free press, a working parliament and a good civil society and is becoming a model for the other two countries," Sammut said.

There is little doubt that Georgia has made tremendous strides since independence in 1991. One civil war and two wars of secession left a refugee crisis, destruction of the infrastructure and an economy in shambles.

Now Georgia has a new and stable currency, a democratically elected president and parliament and a free press.

Meanwhile Azerbaijan has press censorship and a government consisting mainly of President Heydar Aliyev's relatives and close friends.

The situation in Armenia is little better, where political dissent is not encouraged and international observers declared last year's parliamentary elections unfair.

Convention of

Attachments

IRAN NEWS ART DESK

TEHRAN - The first convention of officials in charge of cultural affairs outside Iran was held at the Organization of Islamic Culture and Relations in Tehran Monday. The convention is to review policies and practices for cultural work outside Iran.

Judiciary Head Ayatollah Mohammad Yazdi congratulated the formation of the Organization of Islamic Culture and Relations, saying that the organization's principal function was to prevent duplicity of same work by parallel organizations.

Ayatollah Yazdi said cultural officials should rely on Islam and the Islamic Republic, rest assured that they can engage in cultural activities in the four corners of the world.

He hoped that the Islamic Republic would shortly have cultural attaches throughout the world, IRNA reported.

Participants in the convention on Monday also paid a visit to the holy shrine of Imam Khomeini in tribute to his memory.

Museum
About Ho
Chi Minh
Trail

HANOI (AFP) - Vietnam is to build a museum about the Ho Chi Minh trail, the 2,000 kilometer (1,200-mile) supply route hacked out of the jungle that the United States found impossible to block off, a report said Wednesday (August 14).

The trail, actually a network of dozens of criss-crossing jungle routes that stretched deep into neighboring Laos and Cambodia, was a vital lifeline for communist forces fighting the South Vietnamese and the United States.

The museum will be built at Ben Nghia Commune, an old, aging post for troops heading south, located 15 kilometers (nine miles) outside Hanoi. It will also be a center for studying the Truong Son regiment, an engineering corp that hacked the trail out of the mountainous jungle, the Vietnam news agency said.

U.S. forces repeatedly carpet bombed the trail but were unable to completely cut off the slow trickle of men and armaments that constantly flowed down the ever changing supply line.

For troops, the trail was an arduous trek that could take several months depending on the season, with the constant risk of bombing raids or disease.

Work is due to begin in October and is aimed to be completed by 1999 for opening during celebrations for the 40th anniversary of the construction of the trail in 1960.

Sacred Struggle Festival of Film and Photography

Encouraging the Creative Impulse

IRAN NEWS ART DESK

The first Sacred Struggle Festival of Film and Photography will be staged in Tehran from August 23-29.

Scyed Alireza Sajjadpoor, the director of the Sacred Struggle Festival stated at a press conference on Monday that the festival is being organized with the objective of presenting films that depict the achievements of the government specially in the reconstruction period and point out the effects of the government's measures in promoting production and reaching self-sufficiency.

The cinematic-photographic event is also being held with the aim of encouraging film directors, producers, and the creators of video programs, Sajjadpoor added.

According to the festival director, the festival will be organized in three main sections.

A. Film and video section, including competitions of 35mm feature-length films, 16 & 35mm short and feature-length films, and video programs with narrative, documentary and news contents.

B. Photo contest involving

Festival Director Sajjadpoor

color as well as black and white images.

C. The third section will include other forms of artistic endeavors that could express the objectives of the festival.

A total of 31 feature-length films and about 1700 minutes of video programs were accepted by the festival's selection committee for the film and video section which included Mahmud Gabrilo, Hossein Hosseinkhani and Mohammad Dastgerdi.

The selection committee for the Photo Contest section, comprising Mohammad Ahmadi and Saeed Sadeqi, picked 69 images for the final stage of the contest out of a total of 370 photographs submitted to the festival bureau.

Members of the jury for the film and video section are Ali Akbar Ash'ari, Dr. Mohammad Rajabi, Hamid Khakbazan, Nader Talebzadeh and Javad Shamaqdar who will be awarding prizes in the following categories:

*Best direction of a feature-length film

*Best direction of a short film

*Best direction of a documentary video program

*Best direction of a documentary film

*Best direction of a reportage video program

*Best direction of a news video program

*Best direction of an advertisement film

*Best producer of a feature-length or short film or a video program

*And the Special Jury Prize.

The jury for the Photo Contest section, including Mohammad Ahmadi, Saeed Sadeqi and Abdollah Zaviye, will award prizes to the best photographer, best producer of photographs and 5 creators of superior images.

A number of exhibitions of photographs related to the government projects will also be organized during the festival days.

Festival entries in the film section will be screened at Africa and Kowsar movie theaters.

South Korea
Set to Arrest
Novelist for Drunken Venture into North

SEOUL (AFP) - South Korean prosecutors on Monday sought an arrest warrant for a novelist who was handed back to the South Saturday after straying into North Korea from China during a drinking spree.

The writer, former dissident Kim Young, 38, better known by his pen name Kim Ha-Gi, was whisked off by security officials at Seoul's Kimpo Airport on Saturday after being returned through China after his escapade.

He said on arrival home that he had been "under the influence of alcohol" when he disappeared from a North Korean restaurant in the Chinese border area of Jangji on July 31, but was "very happy to be home."

The warrant was sought because it is believed that Kim had "intentionally" crossed over illegally into the North, despite his claim that he had been drunk at the time, a prosecution official told AFP Monday.

The Agency for National Security Planning, formerly known as the KCIA, would continue to investigate the incident, the official said.

South Korea's draconian but vague national security law bars with the threat of heavy jail sentences unauthorized visits to the communist North, espousing or spreading North Korean ideology and acting against state security.

North Korea on Tuesday said it would release Kim on humanitarian grounds although he had "committed a very serious crime."

Kim told reporters on Saturday northern officials had tried to persuade him to stay there once they had established his identity, but that he had refused and asked to be returned home.

Kim, once jailed in the South as a dissident, has written most of his novels about the fate of long-term prisoners in the South, jailed for decades for refusing to renounce communism.

Theft of the Royal Bracelet

LONDON (AFP) - An 18th century bracelet worth up to 40,000 pounds ($60,000) dollars has been stolen from a display cabinet at Buckingham Palace, a palace spokeswoman said.

The pearl bracelet, featuring a miniature portrait of King George III, is part of the royal collection, the spokeswoman added.

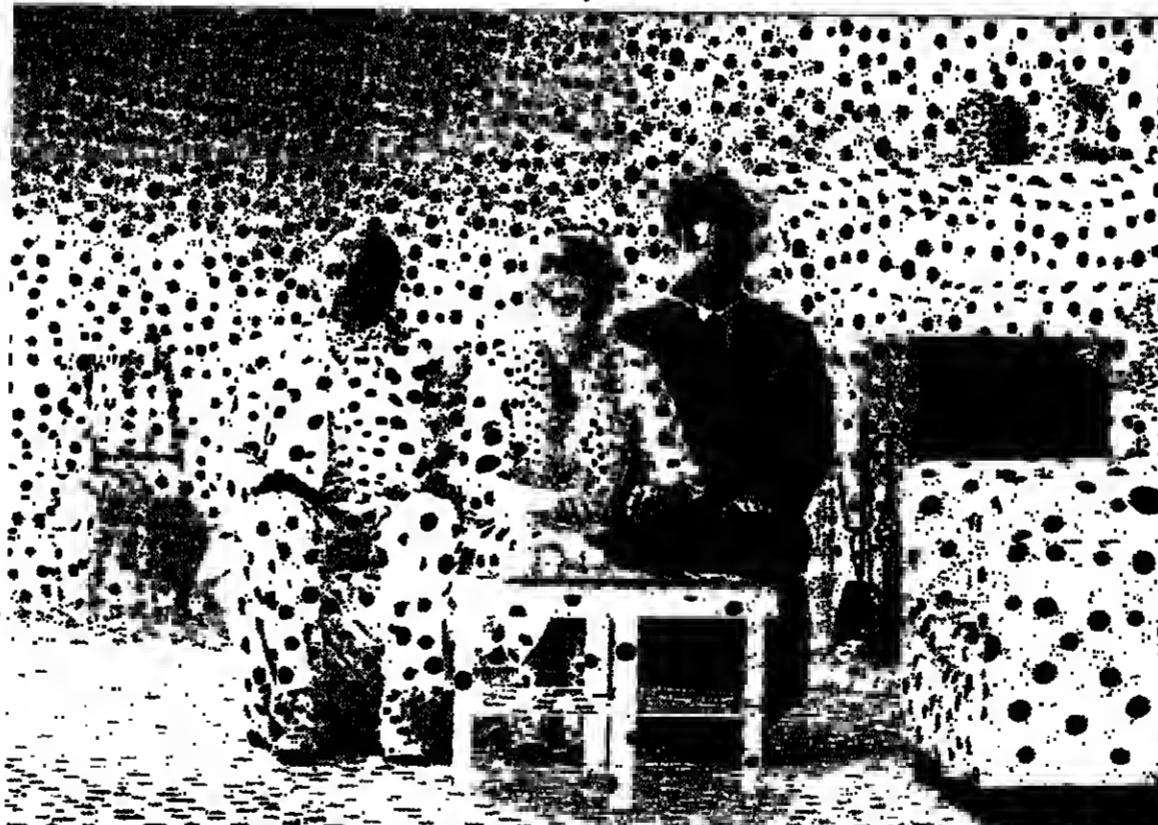

The theft was discovered when a member of the staff noticed the lock on the cabinet had been forced.

It had been suggested that a visiting member of the public might be responsible, but the theft was discovered on July 26 - before the palace opened to the public for a limited period over the summer, the palace spokeswoman said.

The queen has been told and Scotland Yard is investigating the crime, which is thought to be the first major theft within the palace.

Britain's Royalty Taking a New Look at Itself

LONDON (AFP) - Britain's royal family was yesterday reported to be re-examining itself with an eye toward a leaner, meaner, more user-friendly monarchy going into the 21st century.

Said to be under consideration were royal women's rights to succession, interfaith marriage and an end to the much-criticized civil list, the 8.7 million pounds ($13 million) in annual stipends to royal family members.

Buckingham palace was characteristically taciturn. A spokeswoman confirmed senior royal family members and advisers were involved in "ongoing discussions" on the development of the monarchy.

She refused to elaborate, or to comment on a newspaper report that fundamental changes in the constitutional position of the monarchy were under study.

A report in The Sun yesterday, quoting government sources, said

Queen Elizabeth II had set up a secret palace committee called the "Way Ahead Group" to examine fundamental changes that would ease the royal family's way into the next century.

These, said the paper, notably included scrapping the civil list payments in return for the restoration to the royal of the crown estates of the Duchy of Lancaster. The property would produce taxable income of around 60 million pounds ($90 million) a year.

Also under scrutiny, said the paper, was the idea of allowing women equal rights to succeed to the throne. Today only the eldest son of the monarch may take the throne. That, under the new rules, could be changed to the eldest child without gender restriction.

The Sun said changes under consideration also included streamlining the royal family itself, limiting it by definition to the monarch, the consort, their children and those grandchildren who are direct heirs to the throne.

The queen's committee, according to The Sun, was also studying the possibility of scrapping the three-century-old ban on heirs to the throne from marrying Catholics.

The monarch's traditional role as head of the Church of England was also under the microscope, said the report.

The palace spokeswoman said "strategic issues" affecting the royal family were regularly discussed by the queen, the Duke of Edinburgh's household and the Prince of Wales's household.

She said such meetings had produced, in recent years, the much-publicized decisions to reduce the civil list, for the queen to pay tax, opening Buckingham Palace to visitors, granting greater access to the royal collection and funding the restoration of Windsor Castle after the fire.

"The discussion of strategic issues goes on regularly in this as in other organizations," said the spokeswoman. "It is a process of discussion of major issues, involving the government as necessary."

"As to the actual content of what is being discussed now, we are not going into any detail," she said. "It is worth pointing out that one of the reasons the monarchy has lasted for over 1,000 years is that it is able to adapt and change."

The Sun said the idea of the Way Ahead Group originated in 1992, the year the queen described as her "annus horribilis," a year that saw the marriages of two of her children fall apart, her favorite residence gutted by fire and a lively debate on the future of the monarchy.

Israel Kidnapped Four Lebanese After Loss of Mossad Agent

JERUSALEM (AFP) - Israel kidnapped four Lebanese who handed over to Syria a Mossad intelligence agent involved in the assassination of a leading Palestinian Islamic militant, Yediot Aharonot newspaper reported Tuesday.

The Mossad agent, a Palestinian recruited four years ago while studying in Bulgaria, was a source of information which led to the murder in Malta last October of Islamic Jihad Chief Fathi Shakaki.

The killing is believed to have been the work of an Israeli hit squad.

The four Lebanese were abducted on February 22, at the orders of Israel's previous Labor government, after an investigation by the secret services and are still being held at an undisclosed location in Israel.

The Supreme Court turned down an appeal for their release two months ago for security reasons, the paper said, without specifying where the initial arrests took place.

Another Mossad agent was arrested in Syria just before the anti-terrorist summit held in the Egyptian Red Sea resort of Sharm el-Sheikh in March 1996, the Yediot said.

Among the most prominent Lebanese abducted by Israel are Sheikh Abdel Karim Obeid, a leader of the Hezbollah who was seized in July 1989, and another Muslim chief, Mustafa Dirani, in May 1994.

Both are still being held in Israel.

Iraq Turns Deaf Ear to Jordan's Allegations

BAGHDAD (AFP) - Iraq on Tuesday turned a deaf ear to King Hussein's accusations that Baghdad was behind riots in southern Jordan over increased bread prices.

Official newspapers, state-run television and government officials made no response to the accusations, and only Babel newspaper, run by President Saddam Hussein's eldest son Uday, reported the riots on Tuesday.

King Hussein accused elements linked to Iraq of having stirred up the riots which erupted last week in Jordan after the more-than-doubling in the price of bread.

Teyssir Homsi, the head of the Jordanian branch of the Arab Socialist Baath Party which is pro-Iraqi, on Monday denied any involvement in the troubles.

The United States was unable to confirm King Hussein's charge that Iraqi sympathizers had fomented the violence.

In Amman, officials said 14 Baath Party members were detained as were 13 members of Hashad, a leftist party close to Damascus-based radical Palestinian group the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine (DFLP).

Iraq's relations with Jordan, which had been accused of supporting Baghdad during the 1991 Persian Gulf War, deteriorated after senior Iraqi officials defected to Amman last year.

Green Party Taps Consumer Advocate Nader for President

LOS ANGELES (AFP) - Pioneer consumer advocate Ralph Nader accepted Monday the fledgling Green Party's nomination and urged Americans to defect from the corporate-directed Republican and Democratic parties.

The tireless defender of consumer and civil rights gave a two and half hour acceptance speech to some 400 enthusiastic party followers in a University of California Los Angeles auditorium.

To Green Party voters asked why they are being "spoilers" by taking votes away from the Democratic Party, Nader instructed them to say "you can't spoil system that is spoiled to the core."

"Tell them: We are sick and tired of being told every four years we have to choose between bad and worse. And every four years it just gets worse," said Nader, 52, who spoke like an energetic college professor.

His speech wrapped up the Green Party's five-day National Conference billed as "Building Critical Mass, Green Gathering '96." He was the party's first presidential candidate.

The Green Party was formed in 1984 and has won a few local seats, particularly in Alaska and the west, but has not successfully fielded a candidate for national office.

Nader has no chance of winning but is on the ballot in 12 states and activists say they hope to have him on the ballot in 25 states by November. More importantly, he is on the ballot in New York and California where he could take crucial votes from President Bill Clinton.

If Nader were to get seven percent of the state's votes, as one poll showed, by siphoning off liberals disappointed with the president, his presence in the race could push the state into a win for former Senate majority leader Bob Dole.

"A vote for Ralph Nader is a vote for Bob Dole," said Bill Press, a former chairman of the Democratic Party.

Clinton is currently leading his Republican rival by a sturdy 20 percentage points in California opinion polls.

Nader says that the prospect of the Republicans winning was not his problem. "Both parties have spoiled and destroyed Democratic politics in our country."

Both Nader's breezy style and the relaxed gathering of people crossing the age spectrum here, many dressed in sandals and t-shirts, stood in sharp contrast to the starched, made-for-TV Republican and Democratic parties.

Nearly 15,000 reporters showed up in San Diego for the Republican Convention last week for a highly scripted event. About two dozen reporters, nearly all of them local, showed up for the Green gathering.

Even the press passes were printed on recycled paper. There were no teleprompters or police motorcades. Red, white and blue balloons did not descend from the ceiling and the gathering was anything but choreographed.

Standing on a black stage, Nader took aim at the lavishly orchestrated Republican convention that was largely financed by corporate donations, noting he accepts no donations.

Republican presidential candidate Bob Dole and his running mate Jack Kemp "sailed in to San Diego on a sea of corporate cash. It's a wonder they didn't fall off their seats," he said to cheers and chants in the audience.

Supporters, including one who had died his hair green, waved signs that read "Fight Corporate Power," "Go Nader Go" and "Vote for Change." Some held up pictures of the White House with a "for sale" sign on it.

Nader, who gained attention with his book attacking unsafe autos in the 1960s, could affect the campaign in California, whose 31.4 million residents represent 12 percent of the U.S. population and a similar number of electoral votes.

He made no apologies to Democrats as the traditional camp for liberals but he did take pot shots at Republican speakers who bemoaned giving welfare benefits to low-income people while leaving "corporate welfare" intact.

"It's those rich guys on welfare, they're the ones eating you out of house and home," he said, referring to corporate tax credits and tax loopholes.

Nader also lashed out for Republicans zealously waving the banner of family values.

"The rightwingers talk about family values. They ought to talk about corporate values smashing family values," he said, blaming corporations for sacrificing public safety and health for profits.

Crucial Indian State Elections in October

NEW DELHI (AFP) - India's most populous state will go to the polls in October in an election which could affect the future of Prime Minister H.D. Deve Gowda's government, a newspaper reported here Saturday.

Sprawling northern Uttar Pradesh, home to 140 million people, will hold the state government election on October 3, 6 and 9, the Hindustan Times reported. Officials were not available to comment on the report.

The daily said the election commission and the Home Ministry, which is responsible for providing security during polling, wanted voting to end before the start of a Hindu festival season in October.

Uttar Pradesh, like troubled northern Kashmir, is presently ruled directly by New Delhi. The state was placed under direct rule after its government collapsed in October 1995 amid internal bickering.

The Hindu nationalist Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), the country's main opposition, has vowed to take power in Uttar Pradesh. Political analysts say a BJP victory could bring pressure on Deve Gowda's United Front coalition

Christie's Farewell a Disappointment

GATESHEAD, ENGLAND (AFP) - Former Olympic sprint champion Linford Christie's farewell international appearance in front of British fans proved a disappointing anti-climax on Monday night when Christie was injured in the 200 meters and then withdrew from the 100 meters.

The meet was advertised as 36-year-old Christie's final appearance in Britain before his retirement, although the unpredictable 1992 Olympic 100 meters gold medallist suggested he may yet decide to continue next season.

Christie, who was disqualified from the Atlanta 100 meters final after two false starts, was beaten into second place by fellow Briton John Regis in the 200 on Monday night and then withdrew from the shorter sprint, citing a twisted knee.

Regis clocked 20.62 in the 200, edging out Christie by two-hundredths of a second.

"When you run in front of people like this it makes you not want to leave," said the enigmatic Christie. "I've been around for a long time and at the end of the season I will sit down and see where I am going."

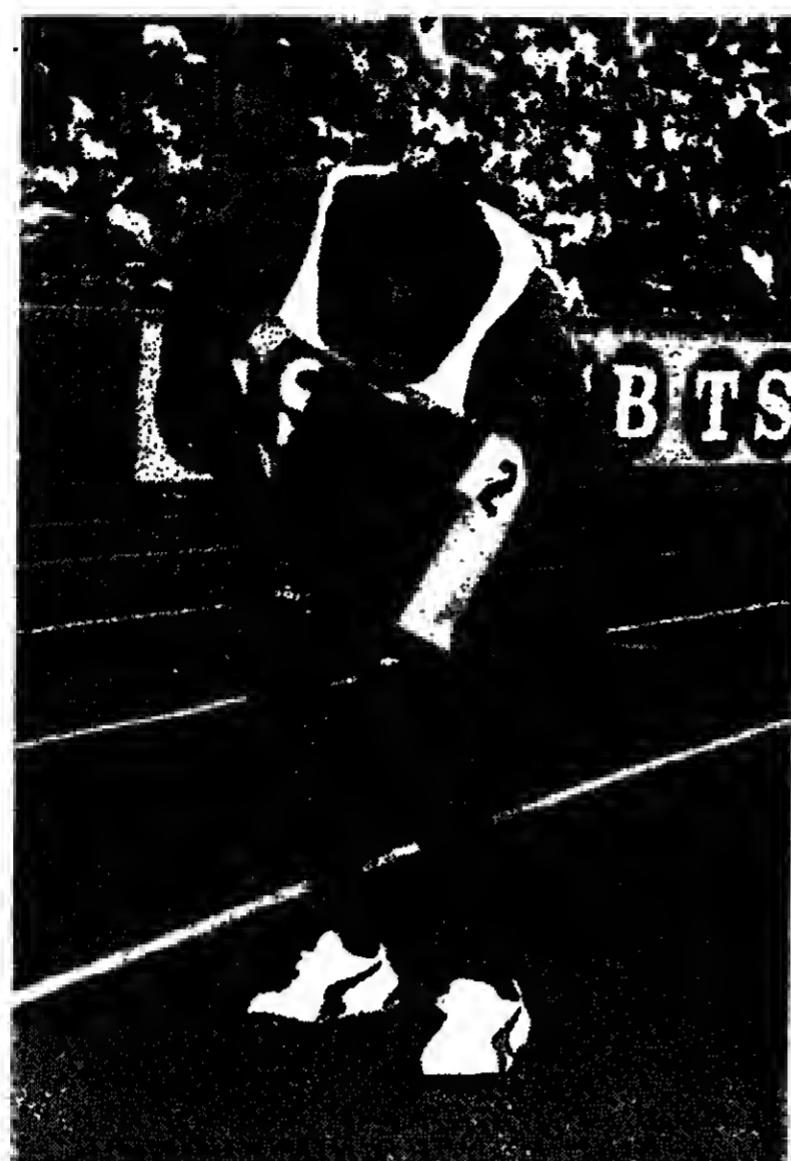

Christie said he would make himself available for next year's European Cup in Munich, but no other international events.

Monday's meeting was a contest between Britain and an international select team, but only a handful of real stars were on show.

Olympic champion Donovan Bailey of Canada won the 100 meters in 10.19sec with Scotsman Ian Mackie second in 10.25.

World record holder Jonathan Edwards of Britain beat Olympic champion Kenny Harrison of the United States in the men's triple jump, for the second time in a week.

Edwards cleared 17.38 meters to win from compatriot Francis Agyepong (16.62) and Harrison, who jumped a disappointing 16.60.

American Allen Johnson, another Atlanta gold medallist, won ahead of Britons Tony Jarrett the 400 meters hurdles in 13.25sec.

(13.33) and Colin Jackson (13.43).

Atlanta silver medallist Roger Black, meanwhile, delighted the crowd of around 11,000 with a victory over American Derick Mills in the 400 meters in a time of 44.64sec.

McManaman Goals Give Liverpool Victory

LONDON (AFP) - England international Steve McManaman struck twice midway through the second half to lift Liverpool a 2-0 victory over defensive-minded visitors Arsenal in an English Premiership match at Anfield on Monday night.

Midfielder McManaman opened the scoring in the 68th minute when he collected a clever pass from John Barnes, on the left, controlled the ball cleverly and then saw his shot deflected off defender Steve Bould past goalkeeper David Seaman.

Just two minutes after scoring, McManaman jinxed his way past several challenges but shot narrowly wide.

He then found the net again in the 74th minute by cleverly creating a chance for Barnes, whose fierce drive was blocked by Seaman. The ball rebounded again to McManaman, who drove the ball home low.

The match was played at a frenetic pace, with both teams showing considerably more enthusiasm than skill at first.

Liverpool, with McManaman dangerous wide on the right, were able to dominate possession, but rarely put Arsenal under pressure early on.

The home team forced a series of first-half corners, but none of them yielded the required result.

Liverpool then lifted their teamwork after halftime and their win, which followed a 3-3 away draw with Middlesbrough on Saturday, was well deserved.

Robbie Fowler went close to increasing the margin of victory but his shot flew across the face of the goal, while substitute Lee Jones missed by inches in the dying seconds.

"We passed it round in the second half and took our chances," McManaman said. "It was just a case of being patient."

O'Brien Leads Open Wild Cards

NEW YORK (AFP) - Alex O'Brien, coming off his first ATP victory, and four-time U.S. Open doubles champion Pam Shriver were among 16 United States players named Monday as wild card entries for this year's U.S. Open.

O'Brien was rated 169th when he won the ATP International final on Sunday, becoming the lowest-rated player to win a tour event this year. He was a wild card entrant there as well.

Sons of Olympic Champions

SYDNEY (AFP) - The sons of three former Olympic champions will be bidding for medals at the IAAF World Junior Athletic Championships, which get underway here Wednesday.

German Danny Ecker, the son of 1972 Munich long jump gold medallist Heide Rosendahl, leads the junior pole vault rankings with 5.52 meters.

Hungarian decathlete Attila Zsivotsky is the son of Gyula Zsivotsky, who followed silver medals in the hammer throw at the 1960 Rome and 1964 Tokyo Games with the gold medal at Mexico City in 1968.

Cuban high jumper Alberto Juantorena will follow his illustrious namesake father, who in 1976 in Montreal achieved the historic 400m-800m double.

Juantorena senior had been invited as guest of honor at the 20th memorial Van Damme meeting in Brussels on Friday, but declined saying, "I wish to be with my son for his major international competition in Sydney."

Pakistan Warm Up with Victory

CHELMSFORD, ENGLAND (AP) - Pakistan got the perfect warm-up for the third test against England when they easily defeated Essex by 271 runs at Chelmsford on Monday.

The tourists, who got into the final test at the oval with a 1-0 series lead, were guided to victory by the hostility of paceman Waqar Younis and the guile of off-spinner Saqlain Mushtaq.

After being set a target of 390, Essex, for whom captain Paul Pritchard was unable to bat because of a migraine, were routed for 118 in their second innings.

The last eight wickets crashed for just 32 runs in 14 overs.

Waqar claimed four for 26 to return match figures of nine for 68, while Saqlain finished with five for 34 for a haul of nine for 81.

Opener Darren Robinson, with his second half-century of the game, was the only Essex player to put up much of a fight.

He collected eight boundaries while making 55 before putting up a simple return catch to Saqlain.

Robinson had shared in a half-century stand with Jonathan Lewis for the second wicket but once that partnership was broken Essex, who fielded several inexperienced players, were simply brushed aside.

Arab, Japanese Buyers Dominate Deauville Thoroughbred Auctions

DEAUVILLE, FRANCE (AFP) - Arab and Japanese buyers have dominated sales of yearling thoroughbreds, accounting for some 30 percent of the proceeds, which were significantly up on last year, one of the auction's organizers said Monday.

Both Arab and Japanese buyers paid out roughly 15 percent of a total $12.4 million on Saturday and Sunday at the yearling sales which continue until Thursday in this coastal resort in Northern France.

The colts were sold by two prestigious Normandy establishments, the Mezerry and Etreham Studs.

Philippe Augier, president and director general of the French agency for thoroughbred sales, said he had feared the worst as the sales got off to a slow start.

However, referring to an upturn in the market, which has been relatively stagnant for the past five years, he said the weekend's sales overall were "clearly positive."

Turnover was six percent up by comparison with equivalent sales last year, while the average price of $602,000 per horse was approximately 15 percent up, he said.

The sales, which are generally a fairly accurate barometer of the market in France, soared on Sunday, although activity was paltry by comparison with 1985 results, when a yearling fetched $1.8 million.
